mation most co-operative during our stay in England. The passes issued by that department were so effective that we were never again harassed by the police and have been issued no more than we almost anywhere.

We met the Hon. Ernest Bervin, Minister of Labor in his office and had a talk with him. Mr. Bervin was born in 1884 and started his career as a truck driver, was general secretary of the Transport Workers' Union in 1914, and was later Minister of Labor and National Service. These people think that he may some day be Prime Minister.

It was in 1914 that the important changes today in Britain is making the world's greatest navy, maintaining armies in many parts of the world, supplying a steady stream of troops for the R.A.F., keeping up the production of tanks, aircraft, and R. P. service, and steadily increasing production of war supplies. No wonder that he told us there was such thing as a saturation point man power.

He has made a wonderful mistake and it must be remembered that this result could not be attained without the enthusiastic co-operation of the entire population.

In answer to our question he said that there is very little world sentiment. But when we asked him whether he thought that the British people had been so far from the war he impatiently replied that the newspapers had to make news, and that he has no news value.

He thinks that the war is bound to be a long one. He said that the United Kingdom a great deal about transportation which will be an effect after the war is over.

We had an interesting conversation with the Hon. Mr. J. H. Thomas, Secretary for India and Burma. He is a Conservative.

Inter-Empire Support

SINCE THE BEGINNING OF THE WAR and for a number of years previous to that time, persistent efforts have been made by the Axis powers to spread the impression that the British Empire is about to disintegrate because of internal dissension. The speed with which all parts of the Empire joined with the Mother Country when war was declared in 1939, was ample proof of the false nature of these claims, yet they have continued from time to time in utterances based either on enemy propaganda or on misinformation. The part played by Canada, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand and other parts of the Empire in naval, air and military operations of the war is well known, and their importance is recognized. There are, however, many parts of the Empire, including the Colonies, which have made notable contributions about which we have heard little or nothing, and the British Ministry of Information has recently published some very interesting facts in this connection.

Much Monetary Support Given

We are told that in addition to the support of their own local military forces, members of the British Colonial Empire have contributed over $100,000,000 in voluntary gifts towards the prosecution of the war. In Ceylon, $3,550,000 has been contributed to war funds, and in addition $1,000,000 has been voted by the Ceylon State Council for the same purpose. In recognition of the latter contribution there is a Ceylon squadron of Halifax bombers in the Royal Air Force. The people of British East Africa have subscribed more than $13,000,000 for war bonds, and in Tanganyika a war savings campaign, which commenced with an objective of $2,200,000 was quickly over-subscribed and this figure has since been doubled. In Trinidad, investors in one week purchased more than $75,000 worth of war bonds, and the Trinidad Bomber Force has given more than $800,000 for the purchase of a bomber before March, 1943. It is known that loans totalling more than $30,000,000 have been given to the British Government by the governments of the colonies, and by private individuals residing there. In addition to this, Colonial Governments are paying the interest on loans raised within the colonies, and lent to the British government for war.

Inter-Empire Help Generous

Apart from the financial help which the colonies are giving to the Empire war effort, it is interesting to note that many parts of the Empire are assisting each other in carrying on vital tasks during these critical times. In spite of wartime restrictions, Britain is finding it possible to send machinery to Kenya, Northern Rhodesia, East Africa, British Guiana and other colonies to assist with the total mobilization of their natural resources. For a food production drive in Kenya, Canada is producing 150 plows and this is only one of many examples of inter-Empire help which goes on all the time. The volume of the voluntary help which is coming from the smaller colonies when the future of the Empire is at stake, does not show a desire on their part to end the present system, or evidence any dissatisfaction in their relations with His Majesty's government. If the Axis nations were to fully comprehend these facts and figures, they would cease to gloat on the hope of disintegration from within as they try their efforts to break down the Empire. Prime Minister Churchill has many times referred to the staunch loyalty with which the Empire has supported the prosecution of the war, and doubtless these are some of the facts on which he has based his confidence.

HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA

THE USE OF NATIVE GREENS

We know that we should eat as many leafy vegetables—fresh if possible—as we can and we can't eat too many. They are the most nutritious of all vegetables, and celery and celeriac that we have eaten a sufficient amount of fresh vegetables. It has been shown by food analysis that lettuce and celery have very low mineral content, so we would be wise if we altered our summer menus this year. Green peppers, parsley, chard, and other greens, which have been used in the past, are not as good as all the good sources of vitamins A and C. Instead of eating spinach this summer, why don't you try the fresh green leaves of your turnip plants. They are very rich in vitamins A and C and have a good flavor. I know some of you have been eating beet tops, but now when you are growing your own vegetables, don't you can have beet tops fresh and crisp from your garden instead of wilted as they usually are in the store. To show you the Western Division Health League of Canada, I am giving you a list with the content of vitamins A and C and an average serving size.

	Vitamin A	Vitamin C
Peas	100	100
Turnip greens	2.0	148.22
Green peppers	32	93.5
Chard	8.0	25.22
Spinach	7	40.00
Beet Greens	2.0	45.00
Lettuce	702	42

Compare the top ten vegetables with the conventionally used lettuce and celery.

These figures are for the vegetables in the fresh state. Nutritional value of cooked vegetables depends on the method used for cooking.

When you cook leafy vegetables use a little boiling water and boil for as short a time as possible to retain the maximum amount of the vitamins and minerals that have dissolved out of the vegetables.

A post card requesting the Western Division Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto, will bring you a free copy of its authoritative vitamin chart.

Much To Remember

Men Travelling After War Would Find Army Guidebooks Valuable

A great many of the men who have been to the far corners of the earth in this global war say that once they get their feet planted in the old home town after the big scrap is over, they won't do any more travelling. They won't do any more travelling, but a lot of them, having realized how much there is to the world, will want to see it again as civilians.

The more adventurous, who will hit for Africa deserts or sub-Arctic zones, will not like to remember useless information contained in army guidebooks. One of them, for example, points out that polar bears' livers are poisonous, a diet of rabbit will lead to death through "rabbit starvation" but seal hearts and kidneys and blended reindeer moose are edible—Kitchener Record.

Could Be Harmful

Care Should Be Taken When Sulfa Drugs Are Used

According to a recent summary compiled by veterinary authorities, the various sulfa drugs which have proved a boon in saving human lives are also saving the lives of farm animals. For example, sulfaguanidine has been found helpful in the treatment of certain types of coccidiosis in poultry, and in calf scours, and also in calf diphtheria. Sulfaguanidine is likewise being used in dealing with coccidial infection in sheep, and in certain cases of enteritis in swine. The sulfa drugs are still new to all their possibilities and values to be known but there is no question they point the way in veterinary science. However, the Veterinary Director General of Canada points out that sulfa drugs unless used carefully are dangerous and on no account must be used unless under veterinary advice and supervision.

SMILE AWHILE

Hubbard (milkily): "What's he been up to now?"

"Can you recommend the company with which you are insured against accidents?"

"Rather! I have been insured ten years and never had an accident."

"I want a word of advice," the young man remarked to his uncle.

"Well," said Uncle Terence.

"What is the best way to approach you for a loan?"

"If you are sensitive," replied Uncle Terence, "you had better write first."

"When you get my reply, just tear it up without reading it."

"Personally I never stay out late at night."

"Why? You don't late hours agree with you?"

"No, old boy; it's not the late hours that upset me, but the excitement when I get home."

"He said he would be at the earth at my feet," said the sentimental daughter.

"Yes," answered her experienced mother, "it sounds good, but it is not practical. You already have the earth at your feet. What you really need is a house over your head."

"Blinking—The fact is, doctor, that my wife does not walk enough. She can never be persuaded to go out without an object."

"Doctor—Then why do you not make a point of going out with her yourself?"

"Mose, charged with theft, was on the witness stand, and the judge asked to discover if he knew the value of an oath. He said:

"Mose, if you tell a lie under oath, do you know what happens?"

"Mose said: 'Yamash, Judge, I goes to hell.'"

"And if you tell the truth," persisted the judge.

"I goes to jail," said Mose.

"What are you doing here, dear?"

"Looking for a husband."

"But you've got one."

"That's the one I'm looking for."

"Hey, you've cut my chin."

A New Strategy

Japan's Former Ambassador To Washington Moves Way To Victory

Admiral Nomura, Japan's pre-Pearl Harbor Ambassador to Washington, offers the peoples of the Axis an assurance of victory that has at least the advantage of novelty. He says they do not have to attack any more. To win now they have only to hold out in conquered positions."

In the case of Italy, to which the admiral's remarks are especially addressed, there happen to be no more conquered positions to hold out from.

That the Germans have been experimenting exclusively in holding out for the past eight months. They have not done well with this strategy at Stalingrad, or at Rostov, or at Kursk, or in Tunisia. Japan's experience in holding out is even longer. Battles in the Civil Sea, at Midway around the Solomon and in the Bismarck Sea have already held out at a stable pace of the Japanese Navy. Guadalcanal, Papua and Attu have provided additional lessons in holding out in conquered positions. In this succession of defeats Admiral Nomura proposes to set a brand-new road to victory—New York Times.

Unpatriotic Evasion

Damaged Parcels Show Postal Rules Not Observed

A complete layette for an infant was found recently in a personal parcel addressed to a soldier overseas. Other parcels have revealed such things as silk stockings, powder puff, hairpins, cosmetics and nail polish. These articles were found when damaged parcels were being repacked by the Canadian Postal Corps. This contravention of regulations may result in the modification or withdrawal of privileges extended by the British Administration to Canadian Armed Services overseas, according to postal authorities.

The reduced rate of 12 cents per pound, the weight provision of 11 pounds and the duty-free entry of parcels is permitted by the British government only for parcels containing gifts for the personal use and consumption of members of the forces.

Civilians attempting to evade customs duty and full postage by sending goods for civilians in soldiers' parcels are committing an unpatriotic offence against the special privileges granted in operation.

Small Wonder Von Arnim, Prisoner
in England, Has Hallucinations

Colonel General Jürgen von Arnim, supreme commander of the Axis forces in Tunisia, who was captured by Indian troops of the British Army when flight by sea proved impossible, is a prisoner in England. He has been quartered in a mansion, attended by his own servant, and allotted as much of his regular pay as is necessary for his comfort. The rest he said he soon became unhappy in his placid English surroundings and suffered from anxiety neurosis. Removed to a hospital, specialists attended him, and a psychiatrist, who found that this representative of Satan on earth has a nervous disorder and hallucinations. He has killed animals, and, if the malady that afflicts him can be headed, he will return to the ranks of those in whose ways he was drilled.

Hallucinations, however, particularly when they have to do with inhuman crimes on a gigantic scale, may not easily be dispelled. It is possible that Von Arnim remembers the night rows of Polish citizens swinging from gallows for no greater offense than trying to keep invaders from their land. Or perhaps Russian peasants, executed without trial; or Norwegians who incurred the conqueror's displeasure. Add to these the thousands of German soldiers, less fortunate than Von Arnim who obeyed his order to "resist to the last cartridge," and the picture quickly remains in Tunisia until the Judgment Day. Material enough to tax the skill of all the psychiatrists the world over.—New York Herald Tribune.

Just An Accident

Morse Code Message On New Nickles
Was Not Planned

Just to keep the official record straight: that Morse code message among the new 12-sided nickles—"We win when we work willingly"—is there by accident.

On so says Superintendent R. J. Edmunds of the Royal Canadian Mint wanted to put some kind of an "it just happened that when we were working out the new design we decided to throw in a few dashes—and it came out that way in Morse."

But there's another version to the story. It's to the effect that the mint wanted to put some kind of an inspirational message on the coin to build up the "V for Victory" symbol on the back. The difficulty was that the design of every coin is very minutely described in a proclamation and there can't be any unauthorized lettering.

However, on each coin there's a row of small "bumps" on both sides of every coin, just inside the slightly raised edge, and as Mr. Edmunds said: "The heading is never mentioned in the proclamation for a new coin; I don't know why—it's just one of those things."

So somebody thought up the bright idea of playing with the heading—and the dot-and-dash message was the result.

High Praise For Britain

Declared War For Principle Of Freedom Says U.S. Paper

Before one becomes harshly critical of another, one should always first take the measurement of one's own corresponding faults.

That rule would shut the mouths of a great many Americans who are quick to trip Great Britain up the back for its war policies.

The people of this country might much the better quarrel with themselves and with their own Government for their respective delinquencies in the premises before abusing and ridiculing a neighbor country and ally in this common enterprise for freedom and humanity.

For one thing, England did better than the United States in that she did not wait until attacked before declaring war upon the aggressors. Great Britain went at the enemy three years ago when Hitler launched his unprovoked assault upon Poland—and went at it without any sort of reciprocal arrangement with the Government violated.

England declared war for the principle of freedom.

America waited until the enemy attacked America.

Not only so, but England preceded the United States in the policy of giving all possible aid to every people and power that was on its side. England has been sending to Russia planes and tanks and other supplies. If she were fighting solely for the British Empire, they would have been sent to Malaya and other Empire points in the East—now lost because the men and equipment needed to save them were already engaged in fighting freedom's battle on other fronts.—Charlotte, N.C., Observer.

One Division Alone Has Installed
Capacity Of 450,000 Horsepower
In "World War I" writes Charles E. Kettering in Chemical and Engineering News, "a division used 4,000 horsepower in the production of about 3,500 total mechanized horsepower, so that the old division of World War I had a total of about 8,000 available horsepower. Today that same division has about 2,700 vehicles ranging in size from the motor cycle to the heavy tank, with a total installed capacity of about 450,000 horsepower." Production of horsepower in aviation engines alone runs into millions each year. Perhaps 15,000,000 or 20,000,000 horsepower in aviation engines is being produced every month. That is why high-octane fuel—aviation gasoline—has become so very important.—New York Times.

Tunisia Can Travel Under Water

Secrets of almost every type of Axis armament—most of it "of the very latest type"—have fallen to allied experts probing through the massive booty of the Tunisian victory. Constantly Watched

Barrage Balloons In Britain Get
Thorough Overhauling Every Day

Britain's barrage balloons are mended for the duration, and so are their crews, who must be on watch 24 hours a day, says "Britain." Every morning the cable must be oiled and there is a general checking up. The winch must be cleaned and started up, and the "purity test" must be made with a meter which registers the amount of oxygen mixed with the gas. Too much oxygen can cause a dangerous explosion. The fabric must be carefully examined for punctures, and any holes must be mended. Picket duty is very important, for a balloon might suddenly leave its moorings and go up. Members of the Women's Auxiliary Air Force are gradually taking over this job, except on islands where the balloons are water-borne. A full crew consists of sixteen W.A.A.F.s but there must never be fewer than nine on duty.

Reclaimed From Sea

United States Army Engineers Have Created Air Field At Bermuda

Many remarkable achievements have been made in the reclamation of lands from marshes, rivers and the sea, and one of the most interesting of the present war is the airfield created by United States Army Engineers at Bermuda.

Named for one of its planners, Kibbeny airfield adjoins Fort Bell, one of the defenses of the island, and it was literally built up from the bottom of the sea. Where 18 months ago there was just the clear water of Bermuda, there is now one of the most up-to-date airfields that air services could wish for. Millions of cubic yards of mud were dumped into the area by dredgers until there was sufficient top surface on which to lay out runways and erect buildings that by any modern standard would be called impressive.

Fort Bell has undergone extensive modernization at the hands of the Americans who hold the land on a 99 years lease from Britain. One of the first to be named was the late memory of General Frank M. Andrews who was killed not long ago in an air crash in Iceland, and another is to be Fort road in memory of the owner of the land who had refused fabulous offers from wealthy Americans to build homes there. But he gave up his palatial home and the land as a contribution to winning the war, saying that if it was the King's wish he would be glad to do so. His death soon after was attributed to a broken heart.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

POST-WAR PLANS

Many cities in Great Britain, among them Birmingham, Coventry, York and London, are already planning for post-war buildings. "Planning" is the right word, for no longer are builders allowed to build haphazardly. The re-building of cities is being controlled, and York, for example, is trying to determine in advance whether to plan for a post-war city of 50,000, 100,000 or 150,000.

TWO-THIRDS of the total number of loans outstanding in Canada's Chartered Banks average less than $500 per loan.

Through bank loans, Canada's Chartered Banks help Canadians to benefit themselves, their fellows and their country. Many of these loans are small—but all contribute their share to the day-by-day activities of Canadian enterprise.

Some further facts about Canada's Banks:

Chartered Banks' loans related to agriculture as shown on the last official return to Parliament, totalled $340,118,473. This sum included loans to farmers, ranchers, fruit raisers and to grain dealers and grain exporters.

Canadians in every walk of life and in every part of Canada are served by more than three thousand branches and sub-agencies maintained by the Chartered Banks to facilitate the nation's business.

Every general manager today heading a Chartered Bank entered the bank as a junior in some small branch.

Up to and including February, 1943, no fewer than 6803 men and 154 women bank employees had enlisted in the armed forces.

The Home Front

Through the housing registries of the Consumer Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, 20,000 place-ments including single individuals and families have been made during the past five months. Excellent response to meet special demands are noted by executives. The registries in Lethbridge an appeal for rooms and board for 80 persons was made one evening and the following morning 50 households called offering accommodation. By evening homes were found for all who needed them.

New ration books will be issued in Canada August 26, 27 and 28 according to information received. Any community may operate any or all of these days, and if conditions warrant may distribute books before or after these dates, providing they assume responsibility of advertising their own dates locally. Ottawa officials have notified the Alberta supply agent. Local ration boards have increased from 37 to 52, thus greatly facilitating the distribution of books throughout the province.

In answer to enquiries as to which or not rationed meat may be served in restaurants on Tuesdays, Walter S. Campbell, Prices and Supply Representative, Wartime Prices and Trade Board states, "On Tuesdays, no meats, rationed or unrationed may be served in restaurants. Poultry, however, is not considered a meat." Thus the Tuesday meat reaches to liver, bologna, heart kidney, sweetbreads and all other unrationed meats.

Prices have been fixed for all grade and varieties of jams and jellies. Regional price differences have been levelled by a recent Wartime Prices and Trade Board order, prices will be generally those of the basic period. To achieve this, manufacturers will be paid two subsidies to compensate them, the first for the increase in price of fresh fruits this year, and the second for a roll back in price to the 1941 level.

Any farmer whose son files with the airforce over Germany, won't think the request to save coming from the manes and tails of his horses too unusual. Half from the mane of the horse is used for shoe pads for army tanks, cushions for army vehicles. Hair from the tail makes brushes to clean guns, clean the wings of bombers, fighter and transport planes. And there is a great need in Canada for horses' hair for these purposes. If the farmer has twigs on hand, and can drop the combings from the mane in one bag, and from the tail in another, he will be contributing to the effort to keep the wings of the airforce free and flying.

Impression of him was entirely false. It was an intensely interesting setting conference for Lord Woolton and his mission to the country and about India and the rest of his mission there. Sir Stafford Cripps is a deep, religious man, few days before he met him he had given an address in Bristol which aroused discussion. He declared that he felt the Church had failed to give the leadership expected of it, and it must be reevaluated to a realization of its responsibilities. He thinks that the establishment of the Church of England is not far off.

Next to the conference with Prime Minister Churchill, this was the most interesting meeting he had. I gave us much food for thought. Our conference with Lord Woolton Minister of Food and the Hon. Herbert Morrison, Minister of Security, have been described in previous issues. Lord Woolton, who came before he became premier was Frederick James Morrison, who brought a fine business experience to his task. He was chairman of Lever Limited, one of Britain's largest department stores, treasurer of Liverpool University, chairman of the Liverpool Medical Research Council, a director of the Maritime Bank, and a vector of the Royal Insurance Co. and many other corporations.

The way he has handled the food situation in England cannot be the admiration of all.

The Hon. Herbert Morrison Morrison is another Labor member having been secretary of the London Labor Party and also of the National Labor Party. He led the group, as calling Chamberlain's war policies. He became minister of supply and later minister of home security. His chief task is to look after Civil Defence, which was formerly known as Air Raid Precautions. His talk with us was covered in an earlier article. These ministers whom we have charged with the work of conducting the parts of the war effort. They give us a valuable insight into the way they have overcome these problems.

BOMBER PRESS

us a great deal about the trouble elements in India. Most of us went away with a new conception of the Indian problem. We also began to realize how little most people know about it. Mr. Emery has travelled most parts of the world, and as we left, he said, "I wish the war were over so that I could pay another visit to Canada." The last conference we had was with Sir R. Stafford Cripps, who is probably better known to Canadians than any other minister except the Prime Minister. He has been a very successful legal counsellor, and is now Lord Privy Seal. He has a very attractive personality, a keen mind, and our whole
